From the honeycomb . . .

The earliest found record of honey gathering is depicted in the Cave of the Spider (la Cueva de la Araña) near Valencia, Spain. This 15,000 year old painting shows a woman on a rope ladder gathering honey from a bee nest precariously on the side of a rock cliff. Other such drawings show similar depictions of people gathering honey in the wild, where honeybee nests are usually found high-up in cavities of trees and the side of rock cliffs

September is SRVBA annual picnic month. The picnic is Sunday, September 7th, starting at noon. The club will furnish the meat, buns, condiments, water, and paper products. Please bring a dish to share with the group. The location for the picnic will be at Dr. Michael Stone's residence at 1850 State Route 12, Fremont, Ohio 43420.

Note: since we're meeting for the pic-nic, there will be no September regular monthly meeting.

Dana Stahlman, Fourth Generation Beekeeper!

Below are a few pictures from the Stahlman Presentation on July 12th. Topics covered the state of beekeeping today, aggressive bees, and fighting pests in the hive, just to name a few.
